

eProfiling is an industry developed, non-intrusive workplace monitoring tool for the energy and ancillary industries, established and endorsed by the Electrical Trades Union (ETU). eProfiling is designed to protect the integrity of the on-the-job component of the National Training System.

The Electrical Trades Union (ETU) represents approximately 65,000 electrical and electroic workers around the country, including apprentices in all electrical trades.

The ETU supports apprentices in a range of ways to ensure that you receive appropriate training to complete your apprenticeship free from workplace discrimination or bullying.

We fight for safer workplaces, strong wages, better conditions of employment and ensure the integrity of the electrical licence is maintained.

The ETU provides additional support services for apprentices including:

- the recovery of wage underpayments;
- ensuring training fees are paid by your employer; and
- assisting with any TAFE and eProfiling concerns you may have.

The ETU is committed to apprentices, because we know you are the future of our proud industry.

To find out more about the ETU or to become a member visit www.etunational.asn.au/

